DEBATE NIGHT

Two sides, a chair and ten minutes. Free to copy.

THE SEVEN STEPS

1. Pick a motion. Vote: hands up, for or against.
2. Split into two sides. Toss a coin.
3. Choose a chair. The chair keeps time and can't vote.
4. Each side gets one minute, starting with the side for.
5. Each side asks the other one question.
6. Each side gets thirty seconds to sum up.
7. Vote again. The side that moved the most people wins.

THE VOTE

	For	Against
Before
After Swing

THE JUDGE'S CARD: SCORE EACH SIDE 1 TO 5

Did they...	For	Against make one clear point?
give an example anyone in the room has lived?
answer what the other side actually said?
stick to the point, not the person?
finish on time?

TEN MOTIONS TO CUT OUT

The middle seat gets both armrests.	Group projects should be banned.
The thermostat should have one owner.	Surprise parties are a bad idea.
Art made by AI shouldn't count as art.	A four-day week should be normal.
Zoos do more harm than good.	Phones should go in a basket at dinner.
Talent matters more than hard work.	Whoever cooks should never do the dishes.

More, each with both sides, at talkdeep.me/debate-topics